“ *When I come to the end of the road
And the sun has set for me
I want no rites in a gloom filled room
Why cry for a soul set free?*

*Miss me a little, but not for long
And not with your head bowed low
Remember the love that once we shared
Miss me, but let me go.*

*For this is a journey we all must take
And each must go alone.
It's all part of the master plan
A step on the road to home.*

*When you are lonely and sick at heart
Go to the friends we know.
Laugh at all the things we used to do
Miss me, but let me go ..*

“ Alan was my strength, my love, my best friend. Oftentimes my hero as well. I cannot describe the extent of loss I feel. His smile lit up the world, and there was no sound more beautiful than his laughter. You will always be the love of my life.

“ I am Alan's uncle. We would sometimes chat on Facebook. He like to tease me about a work shirt that he said looked like a Hot Wheels toy shirt. Since I live in Washington state, we were not able to get together. Sorry for the loss. Terry Beadles

“ What I will always remember about Alan is how helpful he was in every situation. He always took over cooking when we were grilling out and was helpful at other family get togethers. He was genuinely a great guy and the most supportive husband in the world. He always stepped up to help and needed no recognition. The strong quiet man who was always there will be greatly missed and dearly remembered. Peace Beth, I love you.

Alan was such a giving person. He helped me on many occasions with my truck or anything else that was giving me a head scratcher. We always figured it out. He brought his horse Ranger for my daughter's 5th birthday when I couldn't find anyone to do pony rides. His heart is the heart of Christ. I'll miss you my brother.

Alan was always there to have their horses trimmed or shod, especially for his favorite horse Ranger. Alan and I had many good talks about classic cars and he enjoyed coming over and helping with my classic car issues. We talked about finally having a good place to work on cars with his newly built garage. Alan will be greatly missed.
