“ I don't know why this is hitting me so hard. Afterall, he barely acknowledged me throughout the years with the exception of a handful of phone calls here and there, and a couple of visits for whatever his reasons may have been at the time. He never met my children, or their children. I guess I always looked at it as his loss because it was easier to view things through that lens than face the reality that I was disposable to the man who fathered me. And the fact that I had to search for him and find his obituary online rather than have anyone in the family reach out to me (although I sent multiple messages via social media throughout the years hoping for a response) really just puts the nail in the coffin. Now, how's that for irony? So, even as his days were coming to an end, he couldn't find a way to make our relationship mean something.....R.I.P. Darrell Leroy Harold.
