His love for you was inspiring, he was actively hunting for the perfect symbol to express his love for you. Which normally jewelers hate especially since he rejected several of my suggestions but something about Glen and his determination to find the exact ring he had in his mind was uplifting and made me smile and rejoice to see someone get so excited about his lady instead of a guy buying jewelry as a chore to make someone happy. He loved you and he was very special. I am deeply sorry for our loss of such a special person.

My heart is heavy for your family after learning this morning, about your loss. Life takes on twists and turns that put our lives in some pretty hard places. Peace for Glen and peace to you all. I couldn't help but think all day how much I would love to have Glen wave his plate of eggs, covered in ketchup, under my nose and go back to the days when our kids were young.
