“ Happy Birthday Daddy. Your birthday was actually yesterday, but I've been working on your memory disk just like I promised you I would. It has been hard to look through photos of you. One minute I'm laughing at the memory and the next minute, my eyes are filled with tears, and I can barely make out the blurry images of you. This week all four of us daughters will gather together to remember you and Mom. We will share our memories and the love we all have for the two of you. The world is a sadder and lonelier place without you and Mom, but we keep the treasured memories alive in our hearts. You both are greatly missed.
Love Your Daughter,
Cindy

“ I will never forget my daddy, his smiles and laughter lit up all those around him! He had an incredible sense of humor that could not be compared! I miss him so much now! I love you daddy and I will never forget the promise I made to you at your bedside! See you in heaven one day! Until then, enjoy your renewed health and bliss in heaven with Jesus and our Father God!

“ Bill was like a second dad to me and he treated me like a son. I am so glad I got to know him since moving from Baltimore and marrying his daughter Deanna. That was the happiest day in my life. I will never forget you daddy. Thank your for my wife and our memories together!

“ My favorite memory of Daddy is the time he was dancing with a mop while "Baby, I'm Falling in Love" was playing on the record player. The record had a skip on it, so it would continue to play "Baby, Baby" over and over again. Well, Daddy would keep dipping the mop along with the skip. He had me laughing so hard, I was crying. Then there was the story he told us of when he was blowing up a raft and he kept hearing a hissing sound coming from it. He scooted along the ground listening, trying to locate the hole the air was escaping from. When, instead of a hole leaking air, he comes face to face with a snake. Or the time, he was eating an apple. He pulls it back from his mouth, taking a bite, and his teeth were still in the apple. With Daddy, stories and memories like that go on and on. He was always the one you could count on for a laugh. Thanks for all the laughter, Daddy.

This past week has been an extremely difficult week for my sisters and I, watching as our Daddy slowly slipped away from us. I was there as one lone tear slipped down Daddy's cheek just before he took his last few breaths. It was one of the hardest and saddest things I've ever seen, but I wouldn't give up that last moment with Daddy for anything in this world. There will forever be a hole in my heart from the loss of you, but I know you no longer have pain and can be at peace now. I miss you and love you more than simple words can ever say.

*Love Always and Forever,
Your Daughter, Cindy*

“ Too many great memories with the old man. All of them full of laughter. When it came to fishing he'd always say "I may smoke dope and chew a little snuff at times but when it comes to fishing, I don't play"

One fishing trip Tommy was struggling with the boat and asked us to help, we all just looked at Tommy like what can we possibly do. Papa started paddling with a pole or gaff lol.

Another fishing trip we were catching nonstop croaker while of course trying for flounder. The old man had to rods out. He put one in the rode holder to reel in the other. Tommy snuck out the boat and started yanking on the other rode. I told papa you got another "it can wait" he said. Then Tommy really started yanking on the rode, the old man almost threw the rod he was holding out the boat lol.

I remember a movie night at his Glen Alllength home with all my aunts there. I think we were watching aracnophobia, still don't know why I was aloud to watch some of those movies lol. But the old man kept throwing balled up candy wrappers at the girls making them scream thinking it was a spider.

I think I could go on for days. I'm glad I was able to spend great times with one of the funniest people I know.

Love you papa aka old man,
Boy aka Eric
